From Djupadalen, you cross into the Byheiene network of trails, and there is a waymarked path up to the top of Steinsfjellet. The walk is in varied terrain, and sturdy footwear is recommended. It's not far from Steinsfjellet viewpoint to Kringsjå, a cabin with a nice outdoor area where you can take a break and enjoy your packed lunch.

Eivindsvatnet

RED TRAIL 9 KM ROUNDTrip 2 HOURS

Eivindsvatnet lake is at the end of Djupadalen valley. Walking around the lake is a nice option, and there is a lean-to shelter where you can take a break. The route marked on the map is Lionsløypen – follow the signs. If you want to do a longer walk, you can walk up to Orkjå and then walk back the same way or do a round trip via Friluftshuset. Djupadalen valley is the starting point for walks up to Steinsfjellet and the other Byheiene hills. You can also go for a swim in Eivindsvatnet lake.
